scene reflection information

The last thing I recall, I am being wheeled into the operating room for hip replacement surgery at UBC hospital in Vancouver. Total hip replacement (THR) consists of the reconstruction of the two components of the hip—the femoral component (the ball and stem) is drilled into the femur; the socket or acetabular component fits into the pelvis. In spite of X-rays of worn-down cartilage around my sixty-two-year-old hip, I’ve been postponing this surgery for years, because even a new hip has a limited time warranty. And I’m scared. “Complications”—embolisms (strokes), infections, mortality—are also associated with major surgery. Death is not the expected outcome, but as the old bumper sticker says, “shit happens.” (41)

The good wife's guide

- Have dinner ready. Plan ahead, even the night before, to have a delicious meal ready on time for the return. This is a way of letting him know that you have been thinking about him and are concerned about his needs. Most men are hungry when they come home and the prospect of a good meal (especially his favourite dish) is part of the warm welcome needed.
- Prepare yourself. Take 15 minutes to rest or do your hair and be refreshed when he arrives. Touch up your make-up, put a ribbon in the hair and be fresh-faced.
- Be a little gay and a little more interesting for him. His boring day may need a lift and one of your duties is to provide it.
- Clear away the clutter. Make one last trip through the main part of the house just before your husband arrives.
- Gather up schoolbooks, toys, paper etc and then run a duster over the tables.
- Over the cooler months of the year you should prepare and light a fire for him to enjoy by. Your husband will feel he has reached a haven of rest and order, and it will give you a lift too. After all, counting for his comfort will provide you with immense personal satisfaction.
- Prepare the children. Take a few minutes to wash the children's hands and faces (if they are small), comb their hair and, if necessary, change their clothes. They are little treasures and he would like to see them playing the part. Minimize all noise. At the time of his arrival, eliminate all noise of the washer, dryer or vacuum. Try to encourage the children to be quiet.
- Be happy to see him.
- Greet him with a warm smile and show sincerity in your desire to please him.
- Listen to him. You may have a dozen important things to tell him, but the moment of his arrival is the one. Let him talk first—remember, his topics of conversation are more important than yours.
- Make the evening his. Never complain if he comes home late or goes out to dinner, or other places of entertainment without you. Instead, try to understand his world of strain and pressure and his very real need to be at home and relax.
- Your goal: Try to make sure your home is a place of peace, order and tranquillity when your husband can recover himself in body and spirit.
- Don't greet him with complaints and problems.
- Don't complain if he's late home for dinner or even if he doesn't call right. Count this as minor compared to what he might have gone through that day.
- Make him comfortable. Have him lean back in a comfortable chair or have him lie down in the bedroom. Have a cool or warm drink ready for him.
- Arrange his pillow and offer to take off his shoes. Speak in a low, soothing and pleasant voice.
- Don't ask him questions about his actions or question his judgment or integrity. Remember, he is the master of the house and as such will always exercise his will with fairness and moderation. You have no right to question him.
- A good wife always knows her place.
