

THE VEIL IN CONTENIPORARY ART: A RETURN TO ORIENTALISM? WARCH 16 • 2:30PM-4:30PM • DUNNING 12

This lecture examines the veil's prevalence and transformation in contemporary art and museum exhibitions since the late

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices Hijab, Shepard Farey and Banksey, the lecture

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices Hijab, Shepard Farey and Banksey, the lecture

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of contemporary

1990s up to the present-day. With a focus on images of the veil and veiling practices in the art of a range of the later.

1990s up to the present-day. With a

Zulfikar Hirji is Associate Professor at York University. As anthropologist and social historian he is interested in how human societies articulate, represent and perform understandings of self, community and other. His research focuses on Muslim societies articulate, represent and perform understandings of self, community and other diverse ways in which societies in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies articulate in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies articulate in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies articulate in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies articulate in a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies are a range of historical and contemporary contexts. He is particularly concerned with the diverse ways in which societies are a range of historical and contemporary contexts.